Understanding the Gap

Gender alone does not influence the pay gap. It is important to consider the myriad of influences, such as:

- Types of roles: teaching and non-teaching
- The Enterprise Agreement pay scales
- Employee experience and their type of employment: part-time, full-time or casual

The chart above shows that St Pius X College bucks the industry workforce trend by having a more even split with 44% female and 56% male workforce. The industry benchmark is 71% female and 29% male.

Our pay gap is wider in the upper quartile, by 38% when compared to the benchmark, the gap narrows in the upper middle quartile to 11%. The College is well positioned in the lower middle quartile where there is no gender pay gap (1%) and the College is performing 25% better than the benchmark. This is a strength in the data for the College. In the lower quartile, the gender pay gap is 14% smaller than the benchmark and another strength in the data.
